Her goat cheese has been gracing our table for nearly six years and has been involved in many of our meals) Originally posted September 2011 and found in Cooking Light, Summer 2011 edition, page 158 When we visited Israel last December, our friend, Sharon, wanted to make traditional cakes for us to try. She made a chocolate version, and we loved it, so she decided to make one with goat cheese. I wanted to make a peppermint-mochi cake, and Nikki called up a dairy that she manages and asked if they had any fresh goat cheese. The goat cheese was very creamy, and they agreed that it would be perfect for the mochi! It was a fabulous combination of flavors and textures. The goat cheese had great flavor, and the mochi had a nice chewy, peanutty flavor. But, it didn't taste too sweet. This is a wonderful tea-time cake. Ingredients 1/2 cup oil 1-1/2 cups sugar 1 egg 1/2 cup water 1/4 cup white vinegar 3 1/2 cups flour 1 tablespoon baking soda 4 ounces goat cheese 1/4 cup butter, melted and cooled 1 teaspoon vanilla extract 1/4 teaspoon salt Zest of 1 small lemon (or other citrus) 1/2 teaspoon peppermint extract 3/4 teaspoon cream of tartar 3 ounces mint chocolate, to garnish (found in the cheese or grocery section of your local health food store) Directions 1. Cream sugar and butter together in large bowl using electric mixer (or in stand mixer). Add egg and beat well. Add white vinegar and lemon zest and mix well. 2. Mix flour and baking soda. Add to batter and mix well.Abstract The bacterium Bacteroides fragilis expresses a virulence mechanism mediated by the flagellar-inhibited phenazine-1-carboxamide (FIC) toxin.
