References Category:Digital audioQ: Merging multiple files into one using sed or awk I have a folder with multiple files, myfile_00001.txt, myfile_00002.txt,... myfile_09999.txt. I would like to create a new file, with the following name (for example, mergedfile.txt): value1 = myfile_00011.txt + myfile_00012.txt + myfile_00013.txt +... + myfile_09999.txt I've been trying to do it using sed or awk. Below is the code that I have written (by trial and error). Does it work? for i in {1..999} ;do sed -i '0' $i.txt's/^(.)_./#\1_1/' awk '{printf "%s, ", $i.txt}' mergedfile.txt done A: You may use: awk -v OFS=' ' -v n=1 '{printf "%s_%02d.txt,%s ",$1,n,$2}' _.txt To specify these separators, the _.txt may be changed to *.txt. Output: myfile_00001.txt,myfile_00002.txt,myfile_00003.txt,myfile_00004.txt,myfile_00005.txt,myfile_00006.txt,myfile_00007.txt,myfile_00008.txt,myfile_00009.txt,myfile_00010.txt,myfile_00011.txt,myfile_00012.txt,myfile_00013.txt,myfile_00014.txt,myfile_00015.txt,myfile_00016.txt,myfile_00017.txt,myfile_00018.txt,myfile_00019.txt,myfile_00020.txt UPDATE I edited to use awk for printing the names and lines of the files to merge. It is based on whether the first field of the input file contain _. If it don't, the first field is "value1" which is
