Ultra Beeper Full Crack is a system of noises designed to keep insects away. You can use it to test your hearing, or to compose Morse code messages. It can play a wide range of different sounds that range from low to high. It can emit dynamic pitch sounds and can be customized by its users. Key features include: -Customizable pitch (Low, Mid, High or Extreme) -Instant Tests of your hearing -Morse code translator -Noise Generator -Programmable Chirps -Auditory test software for Windows® Ultra Beeper is a simple to use and intuitive application that can release high pitched noises in order to keep insects away or to test your hearing. Additionally, the software features a Morse code translator, capable of turning your messages into the beep pattern and send out messages. The human ear can capture a wide range of pitches and frequencies, but most of them are in the median area of the audio spectrum. The hearing test function of Ultra Beeper is designed to play beeps at preset pitches, frequencies and volume. Once you start the test, the software prompts you not to modify the system audio volume, because it can affect the result of the test. You simply need to click on one of the two buttons, saying if you can hear the sound or not. The integrated Morse code translator can determine your computer to emit regular beeps that can be interpreted by different stations. You simply need to insert your message in the text box, set the pitch and speed, then enable the software to play the sound. Turn your computer to an insect repellent Ultra Beeper can emit many types of beeping sounds at a wide range of frequencies and pitches. While the low and average pitches can be used to test your hearing or to play Morse code messages, the high and extreme frequency sounds are designed to keep insects away from your computer. Noises at 15,000 Hertz or more are almost inaudible for the human ear, but highly disturbing for insects. Ultra Beeper Description: Ultra Beeper is a system of noises designed to keep insects away.
