At one time that was the only identification I had. How times have changed. If I can't remember where I went, I just go to my computer and type in my name, no password required. It's funny the things that people remember about you. If I go to a department store and don't recognize a sales clerk, I assume that I will remember where I saw her the next time I go shopping. The majority of the time the next time I see her is when she recognizes me. The fact that I didn't recognize her at first doesn't faze her. What does faze her is if she notices that I have forgotten her name. She thinks that she is being put down. Here is the kicker. She often forgets my name. So, it is okay for me to call her by my first name and for her to call me by my last name. Who really knows who they really are? Is our name on our birth certificate the real name that we have known for the rest of our lives? Not for me. I don't have a birth certificate. I was born in 1943 in Spain. My name at the time was Mavis Acosta. When I was five years old, my father changed my name to Mavis Carvahlo. I grew 570a42141b
