Pro 11. This is an Adobe requirement. Find out more about it. During times of great change, the critical role of law in enabling or constraining the changes is overlooked. This talk explores the legal dimensions of sustainability issues. I examine the new legal landscape of sustainability of law and policy, including guidance from the UK Supreme Court and a new volume of case law on sustainable development, and provide a historical perspective on the legal dimension of sustainability, which I will link to the international law of sustainability debates. I also reflect on the roles of lawyers in environmental law reform. Dr Gabrielle Tabor, Director, International Law, Policy and Sustainable Development (ILPAD), University of Bristol Law School

Experts: Professor Anita Manley, the Head of Environmental Law at Oxford University's Faculty of Law
Dr Fabiola Barros de Paiva, Lecturer in Environmental and Industrial

Law, University of Dundee Dr John Christodoulou, Senior Lecturer in EU Law, University of Southampton Law Futures is a new series where we ask leading academics, practitioners and practitioners to reflect on key issues in the global law profession in the wake of Brexit. We are inviting expert contributions to help law professionals navigate the sectoral and global shifts of Brexit and their implications for the profession. Law Futures is produced in partnership with the ILM and is a publication of the Global Legal Monitor project. For more information, please see use cookies to enhance your experience on our website.
