Piritrexim [1-(2,4-diamino-5-trifluoromethylpyrimidin-1-yl)-beta-D-ribofuranosyl-5-iodouracil] is a derivative of daunorubicin in which the sugar moiety has been replaced by an ethylene bridge. It has a distinctive profile of activity against human solid tumor cell lines (compared to daunorubicin) and its activity is unaffected by overexpression of P-glycoprotein. It has a comparable activity against animal cells. Piritrexim has potent antitumor activity against tumor cells in vitro. It is currently in phase II clinical trials for use in combination with other chemotherapeutic agents in the treatment of solid tumors. The mechanism of action of piritrexim involves the inhibition of the enzyme DNA topoisomerase II. In this paper, we report the results of biophysical investigations of piritrexim that provide information on its mechanism of action. 1H-NMR studies have shown that piritrexim binds to DNA as a groove binder. 1H-NMR and thermal denaturation studies of the topoisomerase II enzyme have shown that piritrexim binds tightly to the enzyme and stabilizes the covalent DNA-enzyme intermediate. The interaction of piritrexim with the enzyme may lead to its efficacy in inhibiting DNA repair and thus augmenting its antitumor activity. ON March 15th five men were arrested in Carenage, a village on the island of Saint Lucia. One of them was a French citizen, named Jerome Toussaint, who was found in possession of 28 kilos of cocaine. According to local people, it was his third drug haul in as many months. On the previous occasion, Mr Toussaint said he had been paid $6,000 to carry a shipment of coffee for a local trader. He said the payment included a bonus of about $3,000 for making a delivery. The practice, known as "buying in bulk", is a common way of financing drug trafficking in the Caribbean. It has little to do with the risks involved in importing drugs and everything to do with the economics of
