The new controls in FIFA 22 allow gamers to use the right analog stick to initiate the previous and next player without the use of an accelerator key. The analog sticks are mapped to the left and right-click buttons, allowing players to move, run, and pass the ball very naturally. FIFA also introduces “New Skills”, the same skills that real-life world class players use. These new skills are player controlled and require no aim and aim time. The new “New Skills” include an updated Shooting Skill, a new Jump Skill, an improved Shot Power Skill, and a new Speed Retrieval Skill. These skills add new offensive and defensive options for gamers. “The addition of ‘HyperMotion Technology’ and ‘New Skills’ will make FIFA 22 a deeper experience for players who truly love the technicalities of the game and the fine nuances of world-class football,” said David Rutter, General Manager of EA SPORTS FIFA. “With these new content releases, FIFA 22 becomes the must-have football game of 2017.” FIFA 22 introduces revamped visual improvements including cleaner, crisper visuals and a revamped First Touch Experience (FTE) implementation. The new FTE camera reacts to player, ball and crowd interaction allowing the camera to re-evaluate scene every time the ball is touched. This allows the player to constantly find the best angle to see the ball. Players can change angles to see what the opposing team has in front of them or when they look to receive the ball. Other visual improvements include more detailed animation, recreated crowds, enhanced player skin shaders, improved lighting, and more.
