Complete nucleotide sequence and exon-intron structure of the human uncoupling protein-3 gene. We have isolated and characterized the DNA sequence of the 3'-end of the human uncoupling protein-3 (UCP-3) gene in its genomic configuration. The gene consists of at least 33 exons and spans approximately 14.3 kb in genomic DNA. The exon-intron structure of the gene shows that the human UCP-3 gene displays an unusual organization that is very different from the gene organization of the corresponding rat UCP-3 gene. Q: Stata of Yule-Simpson's DI I have two datasets, one consists of 10 men with their heights (in metres) and another of 60 women, each of which has their heights measured, and their height is higher or lower than that of their nearest neighbour by at least 6 cm (hence there are 30 women with heights within 6 cm of the median)
