Drag and drop the tiles to build a dungeon. The spacious environments are created automatically and, though there are many tiles to choose from, not all of them are useful. The buildings you construct will be shown in the world, and when given permission, you can enter them by using a Portrait.

The World map is divided into sea and lands, as well as the Gondor, Midkemia, and Asturias. In addition to these, you can access and interact with areas that have not yet been opened in a neighboring cell.

The objective of exploration is to collect items using Portraits. You can equip items and weapons by visiting special Stable NPCs, buy items at the Store, or use equipment found in the dungeon.

Elements that appear on tiles by either chance or intentional design include:

1. Entity that appear after a certain amount of time (for example, a monster you'll want to fight, or an opponent you'll need to trade with)
2. Mystery Box that appears after opening certain Portraits
3. A gem stone that appears after completing special missions
