132. Akira Asano ( 1943,6,w) was born on April 3, 1956) in Matsuyama, Shiga, Japan. He is an actor, singer, voice actor and comedian. His professional name is Akira. He also has written and me (up to 3rd months). For his first work, Akiko met his friend who encouraged him to join the theatre club. Akiko Asano was born in Matsuyama city in a family of a military couple of Japanese ancestry. His grandfather was a very strict and have expected his children to do the best, but his father was also a tyrant to his children. When Akiko was a student, a student in his class was expelled from school because he was a homosexual and was beaten in his house. His grandfather asked his mother, "What do you want me to do to him?" She said to her, "I need to know more". Akiko Asano was fortunate to be adopted by his aunt and his mother; they met during the war and married. His birth family were always being kept in secret. When Akiko was only 9 years old, his grandfather passed away and his aunt became a part of the family. Akiko was the eldest of four children, three sisters and one brother. When he was in his sixth grade, Akiko joined theater club and started acting in his first play. In junior high school, Akiko joined school band club where he was allowed to sit in front and make the band stand. Akiko's classmates often laugh at him, saying, 'We can't get a gay to come to our band.'. 'I don't care!', said Akiko. Akiko Asano started learning music at the age of 10. He learned the piano, drums, and ukulele. At that time, he was often invited to his sisters' birthday parties. His aunt gave him a gift for his birthday every year. In his twenties, Akiko released his first album, The Noisy Room. This record was a novelty of laughter and humor. In the early 1960s, Akiko Asano left his band to study drama. He took up his first movie acting in May 1965. He also had a voice acting career. He often worked with famous actors, such as Takashi Ishii, Kippei Shiina, Makoto Kōno, Akiko Wakabayashi
