
"DisplayName" property. Changing it will solve your problem. For example, changing the following line: `DataContext = pdfFileList[i];` for: `DataContext = pdfFileList[i].DisplayName;` Q: Dynamically add extra information to my SQL Server table I want to add information to my table using C# code. Is it possible to save the system date to my table in addition to the entry in my table. I hope to ask if this is possible by using my datetime object or by using a query, or by using a stored procedure (if it is possible). A: If you want to save system date to table, then you can go for stored procedure. Stored procedure will be like: `Create Procedure p_AddDate (@Id INT, @Date Datetime) AS BEGIN INSERT INTO dbo.table(Id, Date) VALUES (@Id, @Date) END GO` In your C# code, you can call this procedure with parameters. `EXECUTE p_AddDate @Id=12, @Date=getdate();` Hope this helps.

Hypersensitivity pneumonitis after repeated parenteral exposure to an aminoglycoside preparation (polymyxin B) in a patient with severe chronic renal failure. A 67-year-old woman with end-stage chronic renal failure developed a hypersensitivity pneumonitis after repeated parenteral exposure to polymyxin B, a cationic polypeptide antibiotic. Although the hypersensitivity pneumonitis had occurred repeatedly in the past, the patient had had no clinical symptoms since the appearance of the renal failure. We propose that repeated exposure to polymyxin B contributes to the onset of this hypersensitivity pneumonitis in an immunocompromised patient. Q: How do you use an SSD in a RAID configuration? I have a hard drive array that originally was
