So when you load it in your browser, you are actually performing a local HTTP GET request to which ultimately results in downloading a file named file.zip from which most likely is corrupted and does not work. You have to download the file via the browser itself. When you open a file in the browser, it will automatically perform a network connection to the server and download the file. as their primary source of Vitamin A: marrow, eggs, milk, liver, and fat. Chicken contains enough beta-carotene to cover the recommended intake of 20 times a day, which is quite high if you stop to consider the fact that chicken actually isn't a great source of the Vitamin. I believe the actuary said broccoli would be enough, but I'm not sure. Incidentally, if you go to the health food store and ask the butcher to grind your chicken liver with a little bit of oil in there, you get a much better tasting result if you use it than if you use the ground beef you bought at the supermarket. 2 comments: I think Dr. McDougall quotes the actuary, and doesn't deal with the other recommendations. If you read further on page 23, he says that nuts and seeds are high in antioxidants, that the United States Department of Agriculture has shown that there is no significant amount of beta carotene in beef, and that protein is best obtained from grains. McDougall's chart, on page 36, explicitly states that the recommended dietary allowance of beta carotene is not exceeded by anything, and that large amounts of beta carotene can lead to abnormal growth of bone. The aim of this work was to evaluate the capability of three different solvents (acetone, chloroform and methanol) in the extraction of 11 BDEs from rice, wheat flour, milk, milk powder, wheat and maize flour, salt, and from several dust samples. The detection limit, the precision, the recovery and the linearity were determined. Determination of the 11 BDEs was carried out by GC-MS and confirmed by GC-NCI-MS. A good sensitivity and good recoveries between 60 and 100% were observed, except for the determination of BDE-209 (41%) for grain wheat and bread. The values of the detection limit varied from 0.05 to 0.66ng/g. The repeatability and the reproducibility of the method were satisfactory as shown by the coefficients of variation below 20% and 20%, respectively.----- Forwarded by Vince J Kaminski/HOU/ECT on 09/06/2000 12:10 PM ----- Enron North America Corp.
