The above poster photo for the documentary, about R.B.I., was taken at the National Film Theatre in London. It featured several actors, and about 20 minutes in, a little girl also appears. This was the only thing about which I was aware. Any guesses? 2 Answers 2 It's from The Other Side of Midnight, a movie by Lina Wertmuller (wife of Rainer Werner Fassbinder). The photo in the movie poster was taken at the National Film Theatre (British Film Institute) for the premiere of the movie in London. The movie is about a female erotic dancer and a journalist who is a former lover of hers. Later, at the end of the credits, that girl (age 6 or 7) appears in the credits of the movie. This is probably her character (an actress who I don't know). Thank you, that's the answer I was looking for! - MikkoJun 4 '14 at 14:20 I would also like to mention that Wertmuller chose the National Film Theatre as the filming location for The Other Side of Midnight. The poster photo is from a publicity photo on the Internet. - MikkoJun 4 '14 at 14:25 Cyclic mechanical stretch regulates cholinergic receptor subunit expression and assembly into functional nicotinic acetylcholine receptor complexes in cultured pulmonary artery endothelial cells. Cholinergic signaling is critical in the modulation of cardiovascular function. Cholinergic receptors are expressed in multiple cells of the arterial wall, including endothelial cells. In addition, the subunits of the cholinergic acetylcholine receptor (AChR) are expressed at the cell surface, suggesting the presence of ligand-gated AChR in endothelial cells. The current study describes the
