Making a Difference Personalized medicine has become a buzzword in recent years, but what does it mean? Let's start with the most common vision of personalizing medicine. It's the notion that doctors need to treat each patient as an individual. They should adjust the dose, the length of treatment, the kind of medication and the side effects to the patient's needs. Personalized medicine is a fancy way of saying personalized medication and it's where many doctors (and some patient organizations) believe that the future of healthcare will be. But when that becomes more
