They're not aliens - they're xenomorphs, and they want you! Race your way through the tunnels of an abandoned research facility, battling merciless alien predators and dodging their terrifying acidic blood. Battle your way to freedom. Die and come back. The game is based on Atari Gemini², released only recently in 2015. It was an outstanding hit and a great success in gaming history. For us, it's a fun and flashy shoot-'em-up with thousands of different enemies. Not to say "The Alien is here", but... "You're dead, he's coming for you." For the developers, it's new grounds to explore and shape. It can become a „classic“, among many other things. Your hope: Save all survivors in 50 missions and reach the right exit. Is it possible to complete it in 25 minutes? * Played this game since 2013/2014 - currently playing it on steam (obviously) * Written completely by myself, with my own ideas * I was eager to create a classic and I also wanted to „bring back the feeling“ of classic shooters
