On October 31, Bibi was found guilty of "insulting, by words, the Holy Prophet (peace be upon him)". According to the South Asia Monitor, a news site based out of Christchurch, New Zealand: Pakistan's Supreme Court has upheld the death penalty awarded to Christian woman Asia Bibi after a lower court found her guilty of insulting Islam's Prophet Muhammad. The five judges of the Supreme Court ruled by an 8-0 vote that the blasphemy case against Bibi and her associates was not sufficiently serious and would not affect national security. Bibi was initially charged with 295 counts of blasphemy. Upon conviction, the death sentence was awarded to her on the same day. She is now awaiting a date of execution. The Supreme Court's ruling is an embarrassment for Pakistan's current government. In April, Prime Minister Imran Khan issued a statement condemning the Supreme Court's verdict against Bibi. "The Supreme Court verdict clearly showed an anti-Islam bias," he said. Bibi's case has gained worldwide support. On October 31, Pakistani Christians and human rights activists celebrated the bail verdict for Bibi. "It is a victory for humanity that the number of people sentenced to death for blaspheming the name of the Holy Prophet is going to be reduced.", said the Rev. Nadeem Javaid, secretary of the All Pakistan Minorities Alliance.
