Once upon a time, there was a small town with a coal-powered train station. Enter a group of curious characters, as they wait for their train, and begin a journey into a fiery underworld. ----- The game was in production for four years, from June 2014 to October 2018, and releases in August 2018. Developer comments: I hope you enjoy this game as much as I enjoy making it! If you use my game, please give credit and do not use any assets beyond the characters and environments, unless otherwise stated. Also, read the OP here, before posting about the game here: Original creator's devlog here: Devin gave his opinion here: Here is a great video play-through of the game, with a mention of being "like fing point-and-clicky." Thanks to Dimm NOB: ----- Release Notes: (- due to a couple of crash bugs, there may be slight visual changes on the first play-through) #1 What's New: * Fixed a bug in the cape and headband systems! * Refactored NPC portrait dialogue system, so NPCs get more interesting dialogue as you play, and there's a new palette of voices for you to choose from. * Fixed a lot of bugs in the character creation system, and made it prettier, so now you can select gender, face shape, eyes and hair color, and shirt color. #2 Changes: * The main character has had a makeover, and some of the characters' hair has been changed. * The main battle is now a unique random-gen platformer for each run-through of the game. * Updated the game's main character design, so you'll see a big change now that I've had to deal with some health issues that were rearing their ugly heads in my mental health. * Finally added c9d1549cdd

You start with $100 and you have to buy 100 sunflower seeds. The earning is done automatically in a loop. As my first other game I offer you an exciting and relaxing marble game. As always you play as a small marble, which you have to get to the end. All of the squares are of different colors and always are positioned on a hexagonal grid. In most cases the little marbles will fall onto these blocks, but you have to make sure that you don't make any contact with them. You start with $99 and as you collect sunflower seeds your bank balance will grow. There are a bunch of different blocks on the board which you can use to let your little marble fall down. There are also some bonus blocks which you will unlock as you progress. On the win screen you get points for any blocks you hit, the more blocks you hit the more points you get. As usual there will be a bunch of maps to play with and if you die you can put the power plants on the board again. "Can you help Anna to prepare a delicious 3-course dinner for a party? You'll have to feed your guests delicious plates while making sure you don't run out of ingredients. Each plate is served on a randomized table, so it's up to you to decide which dishes to put on which plates." Today we will introduce you to the second game developed in the Game with Friends workshop. This time we present you a space shooter game. You have to shoot every flying saucer that passes by. Each saucer will hit you with a load of points. You can win this game by being the last one left. Don't worry, it won't be easy, the ships have special weapons to defend themselves. Your first mission is going to be to destroy the first wave of invaders. They come in ships and land close to you. So you have to prepare your defenses. This is all because the incoming waves has just the same purpose as you. They want to attack the planet. Your spaceship has weapons. You can use them to shoot missiles, lasers and rayguns. You can also equip your ship with shields, which will protect you against the enemy weapons. And the shields aren't only for the defense. You will earn points when the shields are up. Your spaceship will also move around and you will have to aim it at the enemies. You will see a fire square on the field.

ST I would like to thank Boxer for granting permission to post his tutorials on MBB.com! There are six tutorials in the series and I will wait until all are posted before linking all together in a full thread. Last but not least is my studio report. ----- The little AF of Tiger Fighters in terms of paint job. Pre-decor coat is Wrangler Smoky Blue and clear coat is Rit's Gloss Varnish. 20 minutes was left on each coat of the clear coat Alcohol yes, but it really doesn't come out good unless you constantly monitor the application on the thin sections of the paint and blend layers from one finish to another. Just be sure to use a vacuum and keep doing this to the best of your ability, I use a little lid from a plastic bottle to cap off the lid to a drinking vessel when I'm finishing the last of the gloss. Also, I'm a perfectionist so I like to blend the thinner areas with a clean brush loaded with thinner and then then thin down the previous layer to the same thickness before the next layer of the clear coats. When you get to the part where you are polishing the topcoat and probably the bottom, use a high gloss sealer and polishing cloth between layers of glossy topcoat Not sure why you need a tiger fighter but as its only for painting 25 to 30 min. the two coats of Rit's Gloss varnish with clear would be enough. The only pigment differences will be that the Tiger fighters will have a matte top coat to look like 1930s planes and the others will have gloss varnish but it will be different since Tiger fighters will have a couple more coats of the varnish after the gloss. I followed Tiger Fighter's instructions and did the deco as well as the regular coat. The deco was interesting because I misted the tiger fighters with buffalo white panel filling. Its a similar solution to the Red air force tracers matting from December 2009 but instead of panel filling I used chalked liquid wax. The effect of the white was nice and added more character to the bird. The deco was light opaque so you had to lightly drybrush around the wing and tail of the bird to get the full effect. The only thing I noticed was that my brush marks picked up some of the misty-ness. Definitely not a problem but you do see it and you may have to fix it with a
