their baby and parent to access a photo from an unlimited photo library, as it is the case with facebook. Google, Facebook, and Apple are also updating how they will address the issue of protecting sensitive information and the use of social data at scale. While this data is critical for social networks and advertisers, it is also critical for government agencies. Knowing what we can learn about people from their data, including their family relationships, is necessary for the government to make good decisions. According to US law, the government cannot listen in to our conversations without a warrant. Google, Facebook, and Apple are expanding their new data sharing model to make sure government agencies have the ability to monitor and remove sensitive data when necessary. Personal data is by far the most valuable thing in the world. It is used to decide your mortgage, the price of goods and services, who will win the next election, and the price of a stock. Yet we are in danger of losing this data due to careless handling by employees and the companies that collect it. Rather than build a time machine to go back and fix a mistake, we need to build trust in the way that data is handled so that we can move on. Jennifer Lynch is a free-lance journalist in the San Francisco Bay Area. Her work can be found at LinkedInThe role of the human MHC-DR-alpha and MHC-DR-beta genes. The human MHC-DR-alpha and MHC-DR-beta genes encode the major histocompatibility complex class II DR molecules (HLA-DR), which are composed of three non-covalently associated polypeptide chains: alpha, beta, and Ii. The MHC-DR-alpha and MHC-DR-beta loci are closely linked in their chromosomal context, and, in contrast to other class II genes, they display high linkage disequilibrium among the haplotypes. However, their segregation on the chromosome is not independent. Two of the DRB genes (DRB1 and DRB3) are highly polymorphic with extensive cross-reactivity among allelic products, and the expression of the other genes may be influenced by the segregation of the DRB genes. The restriction and significance of the linkage disequilibrium of the MHC-DR genes is becoming more evident, particularly in relation to pregnancy complications and to susceptibility to autoimmune diseases. In addition, DR-alpha and DR-beta gene products may have different functions in antigen presentation and in

Changes in the cytoskeleton of bovine aortic endothelial cells induced by cytochalasin B, 6-ketocholantriol and colchicine. Visible modification of the cytoskeleton and membrane marker after exposure to cytochalasin B, 6-ketocholantriol and colchicine are reported. The drugs induce changes in cell morphology and an increase in the number of pseudopodia. The functional significance of these modifications is discussed.Q: Why does $E[\mathbb{1}_\mathcal{A}(Y)\text{sign}(Y)|X_1,X_2]$ equal $0$? I'm starting to delve into A/B testing and we came across this following sample with 2 groups and 50 observations in each. $X_1\sim N(\mu_1,\sigma_1^2)$, $X_2\sim N(\mu_2,\sigma_2^2)$ $\mathbb{1}_\mathcal{A}(Y)=\mathbb{1}_{Y>0}$ $Z_i=Y_i-\bar{Y}=X_i-\frac{1}{50}\sum_{j=1}^{50}Y_j$ In the above sample we have, $\mathbb{E}[\mathbb{1}_\mathcal{A}(Y)|X_1,X_2]=\mathbb{E}[\mathbb{1}_{Y>0}|X_1,X_2]=\mathbb{E}[\mathbb{1}_{Z_1,Z_2>0}|X_1,X_2]$ What I do not understand is why $\mathbb{E}[\mathbb{1}_{Z_1,Z_2>0}|X_1,X_2]=0$ My main reasoning why I think it should be $0$ is that $Z_i=X_i-\frac{1}{50}\sum_{j=1}^{50}Y_j$, So since $X_i\sim N(\mu_i,\sigma_i^2)$ for $i=1$
