Thyroid-stimulating hormone and luteinizing hormone plasma levels in anorectic patients before and during treatment with osetiline and megestrol acetate. Thyroid-stimulating hormone (TSH) and luteinizing hormone (LH) plasma levels were measured in 10 women suffering from anorexia nervosa before and during treatment with either megestrol acetate (MA) or osetiline (OS) in a randomized order. Serum TSH and LH concentrations were significantly higher in anorectic women compared to a control group of healthy women matched for age and body weight. Both drugs were superior to placebo in reducing TSH and LH serum levels, with statistically significant differences between MA and OS. TSH concentration tended to decrease throughout the study period, while LH remained steady in response to all treatment except the placebo group. Measurements of T3 and T4 levels in plasma during the same period showed a significant reduction at the end of treatment. No correlation was found between TSH and LH plasma levels and any biological or clinical variable studied. The results are consistent with the literature, indicating that TSH and LH are increased in anorectic women and that the drugs under study have a specific effect on their secretion.Today's

Insightful Quotation
"Wise words will come to me." - Maya Angelou
"Remember that silence is more eloquent than words, and you must use that tongue so that you do not trip over it. Use it well to speak to each other, rather than to think; use it to sing, not to curse; use it to laugh, if you know how." - Anna Pavlovna, Princess of Tauride in

Dostoevsky's "Notes from Underground." Today's Insightful Quotation It means that meditation is a non-affectational, one-sided act. It is only a one-sided act of the mind and everything that the mind does is all right. If it is unpleasant, it is not good; if it is good, it is also not good. It is not your attitude about your being. And being means all activities, but being means only the consciousness of them. What you are talking about is not being, and what you are not talking about is being. Today's Insightful Quotation 'I' is not an existent. It is the awareness that you are aware of a

integration tests I have some "annotated" hibernate entity classes that are read-only and don't need to be updated during normal unit testing. I wanted to use @NamedQuery to do queries as follows: List things = session.getNamedQuery("queryName").list(); for (Object thing : things) { // Do stuff here } I have noticed, however, that named queries only execute when Hibernate is started. The Hibernate docs say to use integration tests to do this. How can I get Hibernate to execute named queries from an integration test? A: You can use the @TestConfiguration annotation, @RunWith(SpringJUnit4ClassRunner.class) @ContextConfiguration(locations={"file:y our.xml"}) public class TestClass { @Autowired private SessionFactory sessionFactory; @Test public void test() { Session session = this.sessionFactory.openSession(); session.getNamedQuery("queryName").list(); } } This will run NamedQuery in static context as before. Hope this helps. An evaluation of the utilization of topography in a screening program for hemifacial microsomia in Sri Lanka. A topographic screening program for hemifacial microsomia in Sri Lanka was initiated in August 1994. Six craniofacial clinics nationwide. The objective of the evaluation was to evaluate the workload of clinics and to assess the quality of the screening methods. There were a total of 2,708 cases of suspected hemifacial microsomia. A series of methods were used in the evaluation including the surface and landmarks, the photogrammetric method and the photogrammetric technique combined with computer modelling. The average cost per case of investigation was Rs. 8,651 (US $142), while the average total cost for the clinical evaluation was Rs. 569 (US $9). The average cost per family was Rs. 4,398 (US $73). The average time per clinical screening in 1994 was 1 h 24 min per family. Of the 56 infants, 52 (93
