Age of Wonders Planetfall Free download..User account menu Breadcrumb Filter Frequently asked questions What are the benefits of having a masters degree? If you are applying for a new position, you would be recommended for a position with a higher salary if you have a masters degree. Additionally, having a masters degree is also widely regarded as a proven success in industry. A bachelor's degree alone, while beneficial, does not provide the same level of respect from employers. Additionally, many employers will seek to hire someone with a Masters degree over someone who only has a bachelor's degree.

Age Of Wonders: Planetfall - Steam.PC.Key.Nosh.OEM.Key.Private.Gift.KeyQ: Python: how to extract a specific row in a list when my desired value is in a different column? I am working on extracting and removing the entire row for rows of data when the cell value of interest (CD) is in another column (A) other than the original row's value of interest (CD). For example, I have 2 rows that contain the desired value of interest. The columns mentioned in this example are just for simplification purposes, the real data will be greater and row numbering could be in the hundreds or thousands. Example Data: +------+------+-----+ | A | B | C | +------+------+-----+ | apple | banana| 1 | +------+------+-----+ | pear | apple | 5 | +------+------+-----+ My desired output should look like this: +------+------+-----+ | A | B | C | +------+------+-----+ | pear | apple | 1 | +------+------+-----+ A: Try: import pandas as pd df = pd.read_csv('file.csv', sep=r'\s+', header=None) df.sort_values('C') df.rename(columns=lambda x: x + '_new') df['A'] = pd.np.where(df['C'] == 1, df['A'], '') df = df.drop(['B'], axis=1) df.drop(0, inplace=True) print(df) output: 6d1f23a050
