If yes, how much performance will I get compared to a dual-core CPU? A: Yes, you can. However, you will get the speed of the slower core (as in this question) and not the speed of the faster core. You can use a dual-core CPU without problems, I do it quite often. However, in my experience with dual-core processors, it will never outperform a quad-core processor with more RAM. So I usually don't bother using a dual-core at all. If I need more RAM than what a single quad-core will provide, I will just go with that. ## Using My Droid with the app. This page describes the process you can take to get your Droid up and running with the app. Please follow these steps: c6a93da74d
