Bajrangi Bhaijaan was an Indian Hindi-language biographical comedy-drama thriller film written and directed by Kabir Khan and produced by Pritish Nandy and Ronnie Screwvala. It stars Salman Khan, Kareena Kapoor, Vicky Kaushal, Nawazuddin Siddiqui, Akshay Kumar and Kalki Koechlin in the lead roles. The film deals with the story of a young Indian man, played by Khan, who disguises himself as a Pakistani man, Bajrangi, in order to save his friend, whose family is being targeted by Pakistani terrorists. The plot was inspired by the actual story of Indira Jaising, a medical doctor, who in 1997, after 9/11, disguised herself as a Pakistani woman and travelled to Pakistan from India in order to save her friend, who was being threatened by terrorists. Khan, himself, claimed that the film was inspired by his father, Salim Khan, who he portrayed as a Pakistani man, claiming that "I named this movie after him. We made this movie for him. But my father died before this movie was released. So, we couldn't release this movie in India".
